TOURNAMENT HISTORY

The Jacques L glise Trophy is an annual amateur boys team competition setting the British Isles against the Continent of Europe. Great Britain and Ireland won the tournament in its inaugural years by such a margin that the competition was suspended in 1966. ## SELECTION PROCEDURE

The Jacques L glise Trophy Continent of Europe Team Selection Committee comprising Andreas Pallauf (Team Captain), John C. Storjohann (EGA General Secretary) and Richard Heath (EGA Championship Manager). The World Amateur Golf Ranking will be used for selecting five of the nine Jacques L glise Continent of Europe Trophy players, with the other four coming from Captain's picks.

Updates on player progress will be available from the EGA ranking website and enquires as to prospective players' availability will be made to federations throughout the selection period.
